O'NEILS MAY YET FIND LONG-LOST SON. ADLAI STEVENSON

Telegrams From Iowa Tell of a Boy Answering His Description.

GONE MORE THAN TWO YEARS.

Returning Companion Started to aid in Search, but Again Disappeared.

Dispatches received from Burlington, In. seem to throw some light on the whereabouts of 18-year-old Charley O'Neil, who disappeared from his home in Pittsburg eighteen months ago, and if anything further is developed to show that the boy seen at Danville, Ia., last Friday is young O'Neil, his mother will start at once for that place. The members of the O'Neil family, who have been traveling overland since last April in search of the missing boy, are now camped near Forsythe Junction, just north of Forest Park. The family consists, besides the father and mother, of Christopher, Jr., 16; Thomas, 14, and Esther, 10 years old. Two married daughters live in Pittsburg. When a reporter arrived at the O'Nell camp yesterday afternoon the father, Christopher O'Nell, was lying in a small tent very ill. His affection for the missing boy is of a quiet sort. Even in his lucid moments he will not talk about the boy, but when the subject is mentioned by any one else, he breaks down entirely.

The real head of the family is Mrs. O'Neil, When she returned yesterday afternoon to the camp, she was shown the article referring to the boy, who is thought to be her missing son. It was the first definite trace that she had found since the search began three months ago.

Louisville is 275 miles from St. Louis and she covered every step of the distance on foot. While on her way she did various kinds of work, even laboring in the harvest field, to pay her expenses. She is a small woman, about 5 feet 4 inches tall, and weighs less than 115 pounds. On her journey she wore a plain blue calico dress and a sunbonnet of like material. The story of her journey and the hardships she had to undergo are best told in her own words: "On May 26 my husband, Jospeh Bauer, died of typhoid fever," she said, "leaving me penniless, with two little children, who had contracted the same disease. I cared for them the best I could, but they died two weeks later. One was a boy 4 years old and the other a girl 2 years old. When they died I had nothing to keep me in Louisville Whitesides, who lives in St. Charles "As I had no money, I started out to walk, I knew that the walk would be long and wearisome, but I decided to undertake it if

"When night came on while I was out on the road I stopped at some farmhouse. In the morning I would resume my journey. Sometimes I had to stop to rest several days at the same house, but the people were kind to me and helped me through. When ! I had gave out, and so I applied for work. My father once owned a large farm in Kentucky and I knew something about the work. As hands were scarce, I got employ-ment and worked alongside the men in the fields. Sometimes I worked in the hayfield, but most of the time I carried sheaves and put them in shocks. The men always treated me courteously and were kind to me. "I spent my last nickel to cross the bridge over the river. Some strangers directed me here and I came, for I was about to fall in the street."

At 2 o'clock Mrs. Bauer departed from the Four Courts to resume her journey to St. Charles, all together, a distance of 300 miles. Sergeant Dick Fay offered her shelter for the night, but she declined, saving that she ! wanted to get to St. Charles by noon toit was the last act of my life. I felt that it | day.

WILL SUPPRESS GAMBLING. Kansas City Authorities Take a Determined Stand.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 6.-Mayor Reed is determined that there shall be no compromise with gamblers, such as has been suggested by Chief Hayes and Police Judge McAuley.

Police Commissioner Gregory will act in conjunction with the Mayor and will see that Kansas City does not become a "wide open" town in any sense of the word.

In speaking of the action the Mayor and bimself would take in regard to gambling in Kansas City, Mr. Gregory said:

"I wish to say that neither the Mayor nor "I wish to say that neither the Mayor nor myself has ever made any agreement with gamblers to permit them to operate in Kansas City, or that we ever contemplated such a thing. On the contrary both the Mayor and myself notified Chief Hayes some days ago that if gambling of any sort was going on in Kansas City it must be suppressed at once. To-day I shall reiterate this order by notifying both Mr. Hayes and Mr. Halpin that from now on if there is any gambling going on we shall hold both of them personally responsible. We are here to compel an observance of the law, not to make agreements that it can be violated."

COME TO ST. LOUIS WITH LARGE ORDERS.

Merchants Who Never Traded Here Flock to This Market for Midsummer Supplies.

CHICAGO IS A HEAVY LOSER.

Arranges Easy Rate System With Railroads-Yesterday's Arrivals.

Yesterday was the opening day of the second midsummer meeting of the Interstate Merchants' Association, and more than a half hundred visitors registered at the headquarters of the organization.

Many of those who registered have never before been to St. Louis, but all were so well pleased with what they saw that they say that they will do their trading in this market in the future.

One of the visitors, E. T. Lomas of Cresco, Ia., came to purchase a stock of drugs, and reports that he can do much better in St. Louis than in Chicago, where he has made his purchases heretofore.

Advices received by Secretary Singer indicate that the arrivals will be heavy from now on, and he has been compelled to increase his office force in order to properly receive the visitors as they arrive.

GOING TO SEDALIA.

Democratic Nominee for Vice President to Attend Opening of Missouri Campaign.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETS

Prospects in Various Districts Excellent-Champ Clark Tells of Conditions in Iowa and Wisconsin.

Adlat Stevenson, Democratic candidate for Vice President of the United States, will be at Sedalia August 21, on the occasion of the formal opening of the campaign in Missourl. Yesterday Chairman J. M. Seibert of the State Committee received a telegram from Mr. Stevenson accepting the invitation extended him to be present at the big meeting. Mr. Stevenson was in Sedalia at the opening of the campaign in 1892, and the hearty reception tendered him at that time by the Democracy of Missouri probably had much to do with his acceptance of the invitation extended by the State Committee.

Other prominent speakers have accepted invitations to be present. Among them are David Overmyer and John Atwood of Kansas, A. M. Dockery and Webster Davis. The Democratic Executive Committee met yesterday. Others present were A. M. Dockery, candidate for Governor, Mayor James A. Reed of Kansas City, candidate for Elector-at-Large, Congressmen W. D. Vandiver of Cape Girardeau, Lloyd of Shel-Vandiver of Cape Girardeau, Lloyd of Shel-bina and Champ Clark of Louisiana, Judge E. J. Broaddus of Chillicothe, candidate for Judge of the Court of Appeals for the Western District, and R. L. Goode of Springfield, candidate for Judge of the Court of Appeals for the Eastern District, D. A. Ball of Pike and Assistant Attorney General Jeffries of Jefferson City. Owing to previous dates and engagements the other Democratic Congressmen from Misother Democratic Congressmen from Mis-souri could not be present.

Questions relating to the campaign were discussed and ways and means considered. Reports from the various districts were heard and future prospects discussed. "I have not been in Missouri much re-cently," said Congressman Champ Clark after the conference had adjourned. "In Iowa, Kansas, Colorado and Wisconsan, In Iowa, Kansas, Colorado and Wisconan, where I have been lecturing, according to my judgment the opposition to Hannaism is stronger and more enthusiastic than in 1896. I think there is no question but that we will carry Colorado and Kansas this year. The probabilities are that we will elect about two Congressmen in Iowa and some in Wisconsin. The rank and file of the Gold Democrats are coming back and every man who voted for Bryan in 1896 will vote for him this year. The Republicans have money to throw at birds. They are especially interested in securing the lower house of Congress. They care as much for that as they do for the presidency, I believe, and they will use strong efforts to beat us in Missouri with their money."

Congressman Vandiver, who opened his campaign at Koshkonong, in Oregon County, last Saturday, said yesterday:

"The question in the Thirteenth District is not which side will carry the district, but what the Democratic majority will be. The district is in good shape, and the State Committee can rely absolutely upon our unquestioned fealty to the party."

Congressman Lloyd is equally sanguine.

COUNTY CANDIDATES HAD TO PAY. Republicans Closed Lists for Primary in September.

The St. Louis County Republican Central Committee held a fat-frying meeting in the County Courtroom at Clayton yesterday and the various candidates for office were compelled to walk up and plank down the assessments against them or else have their names scratched off the official ballot. Some of them protested vigorously against this ruling and against the amount of their this ruling and against the amount of their assessments, but they were compelled to take their medicine. The money, it was explained, was for the purpose of paying the judges and clerks at a primary election to be held September 5 to nominate a county ticket. The candidates who paid their assessments yesterday and who will accordingly get their names on the efficial ballot are as follows: Bre as follows:

Association with complicity with E. L. Swazey in negotiating fraudulent cattle mortgages, was arraigned before Justice Jenny here to-day and bound over to await the action of the Grand Jury.

His bond was fixed at $1.009.

Scott was arrested on a warrant charging him with negotiating a merttage for $3.000 and a subsequent one for $20,000 on a herd of cattle said to number 1.20 head but which, it is alleged, contained only 415 head. Scott has been in the cattle business for twenty years, and has always borne a good reputation. He declares he will be able to establish his innocence. He says Swazey, and not he, counted the cattle, and that he accepted Swazey's representation regarding the number in the herd. He gave the second mortgage for $20,000, he says, on the representation of Swazey that the $3,000 mortgage was to be taken up and other debts which he (Scott) owed were to be paid with the proceeds.
